A Serious Health Condition Defined:

For FMLA purposes, a “serious health condition” is an illness, injury, impairment or physical or mental condition that involves:

- a. Any inpatient care (an overnight stay) in a hospital, hospice, or residential care facility, including any period of incapacity or any subsequent treatment in connection with such inpatient care;
- b. Continuing treatment by a health care provider that results in a period of incapacity of more than three consecutive, full calendar days (including any subsequent treatment or period of incapacity relating to the same condition) that also involves (i) treatment by or under the direction of a health care provider on two or more occasions within 30 days of the first day of incapacity, absent extenuating circumstances, or (ii) treatment at least once by a health care provider which results in a regimen of continuing treatment. The employee must have an in-person visit to the health-care provider within seven days of the first day of incapacity;
- c. Any period of incapacity due to pregnancy or for prenatal care;
- d. Any period of incapacity or treatment due to a chronic serious health condition. A chronic serious health condition is one that (i) requires visits to a health care provider at least twice a year, (ii) that continues over an extended period of time (including recurring episodes of the condition), and (iii) may cause episodic periods of incapacity (e.g., asthma, diabetes, epilepsy)
- e. A period of incapacity that is permanent or long-term due to a condition for which treatment may not be effective (e.g., Alzheimer’s, stroke terminal diseases), provided that the employee or family member is under the continuing supervision of a health care provider;
- f. Any period of absence to receive multiple treatments (including recovery) by a health care provider for restorative surgery or for conditions that would likely result in incapacity in the absence of treatment (e.g., chemotherapy, dialysis).
